Admiralty Office, June 26,

Extract of a Letter, dated at Spithead the 25th Inſtant, from Capt. Rowley, of His Majeſty's Ship the Superbe of 74 Guns, who, with the Goſport of 44 Guns, and the Danae of 38 Guns, ſailed from St. Helen's the 6th of laſt Month, with the Eaſt India, Weſt India, and North American Fleets under Convoy.

AT Five in the Morning of the 11th of May, being in the Latitude of 47° 47′ and 52 Leagues S. W. by S. from the Lizard, the Goſport made the Signal for ſeeing four Sail of the Enemy in the S. E. which we ſoon after perceived were in Chace

Chace of us: Upon their nearer approach, I directed the Convoy to continue its Courſe, and fell in the Rear with the Superbe, Danae and Goſport, in order to be between the chaſing Ships and the Trade.

At Nine o'Clock, I could very plainly diſtinguiſh their Force; two of them had their Lower Deck Ports hauled up; and, by their Appearance, I judged one to be of 74 Guns, one of 54, or 60, and two Figates [Suppoſed to be M. de Ternay's Squadron, conſiſting of the following Ships, which ſailed from Breſt about the 8th of May, viz. Robuſte 74, Eveille 64, La Garonne 44, Licorne 30.] At this Time the Convoy being at a proper Diſtance from me, (and ſtill going on) I brought too, with the Goſport a-head, and the Danae a ſtern of me, and made the neceſſary Diſpoſition to give them Battle. The Enemy at this Time might be about a League to Windward on our Larboard Beam, crouding upon us with all the Sail they could ſet; but when they came within little more than Random Shot, I was greatly ſurprized to ſee the largeſt Ship haul the Wind, in which the others immediately obeyed him. This I at firſt apprehended could only be meant to prepare for Action, and therefore, though at that Diſtance, I hoiſted the Colours, and fired a Shot at the neareſt Ship, when they all hoiſted Engliſh (Blue) Enſigns, and Pendants, and tacked to the Northward: Upon which we made Sail, ſtood on and tacked after them. I continued the Chace, being little Wind, till Three in the Afternoon, when moſt of the Convoy being more than Hull down, the Enemy gaining from us, and not the leaſt Probability of bringing them to Action, I judged it beſt for the Service I was ſent upon, to diſcontinue the Purſuit, in order to rejoin the Convoy before Night, which we did about Sun-ſet: But as I was fearful theſe Ships, ſeeing they ſailed ſo much better than we, might again bear away with an Intention to cut off ſome of the Sternmoſt of the Convoy, I directed the Albion Indiaman to carry the Light, and lead for this Night, whilſt we remained in the Rear with the Men of War, the better to ſupport the Trade from their Attempts. We never ſaw them afterwards.
